Let's Discuss Houston's Life Science Future! This event will focus on the roots of Houston's established life science community and the emerging factors that can develop Houston into the "Third Coast" for the life science industry. In this interactive format, we will discuss what makes Houston attractive to members of the life science community and hear stories from those on the front lines, such as BioHouston, Medistar and MD Anderson Cancer Center. This session will give you an the opportunity to learn and discuss the current state of Houston's life science market with key individuals in a small, virtual group setting. More speakers to be announced.
